

My Most Memorable Experience in School

It was a nice breezy day. I whistled as I cycled along to school merrily, the wind blew in my face, I could smell the fresh earth and I could taste the salt of the sea. I could hear the sweet chirping of the birds in the trees as I passed by the beautiful flowers I had never noticed before. It was a beautiful scenery. Finally I reached school.

It turned out to be a wondrous day. I got full marks in all the tests. I even won the first position in our western music competition. However the entire atmosphere changed during recess when it was announced that all boys were to go to class. I was surprised since our break had just started. It was then when I heard that a hurricane was about to hit the coasts. I felt a shiver go down my spine. I was also very disappointed that things had taken such a turn.

When I reached my classroom I realized that the rumors were true. Some boys were tensed and biting their fingernails, others were praying while some others were calm and relaxed and playing games. I kept calm and kept telling myself that nothing would happen. Suddenly there was an announcement asking the boys travelling by the school bus to leave first. Then to cheer us up Thamir and Sumher started to fight on who would go to heaven first and even though the situation was not one to laugh about, we all burst out laughing.

Then finally we were called down since the parents had arrived. The moment I reached home I switched on the news and saw that the hurricane was not going to harm Maharashtra. Up to this day I burst out laughing on how scared I had been.

This was the most memorable moment of my life.
